CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Grassroots Climate Action Fund (GCAF)

The Centre for Environment and Migration Assistance (CEMA) invites applications from grassroots and community-based organizations for its Climate Justice Small Grants under the Grassroots Climate Action Fund (GCAF).

Background

Climate change continues to disproportionately affect vulnerable and frontline communities, particularly women, youth, and marginalized groups. Despite this, these communities often have limited access to resources needed to respond effectively.

Through the Grassroots Climate Action Fund, CEMA seeks to support locally driven, innovative, and impactful initiatives that advance climate justice, environmental accountability, and community resilience.

Objective of the Call

The Call for Proposals aims to:

- Support grassroots climate justice initiatives
- Strengthen community-led environmental accountability
- Amplify voices of marginalized and frontline communities
- Promote inclusive and gender-responsive climate action
- Encourage innovative local solutions to environmental challenges

Who Can Apply

Applications are open to:

- Community-Based Organizations (CBOs)
- Women-led groups
- Youth-led initiatives
- Grassroots civil society organizations
- Local environmental justice movements

Unregistered groups may apply but must demonstrate legitimacy and community support.

Priority Areas

Proposals should align with one or more of the following:

- Climate adaptation and resilience
 - Environmental accountability and transparency
 - Community environmental monitoring
 - Climate finance tracking
 - Protection of ecosystems (wetlands, forests, biodiversity)
 - Gender-responsive climate action

Grant Size and Duration
